

PROTAGONISM PROGRAM OF CHILDHOOD AND ADOLESCENCE

Growing in Optional Art Workshops

EPRODEP recognizes art as one of the multiple intelligences that students can discover that they have and can develop in their growth as a person. The same effort is made in sports, music and whatever talent the students may discover that they have and enjoys. Not all students are good at language and math. How to help the student discover and develop what he/she is good at. That is the aim of the school.

On this occasion, the students had the opportunity to participate in ceramics, cold porcelain, engraving, drawing and painting. For 2 months they proved to themselves that they were not dumb individuals, putting into practice specific techniques that helped them grow in their ability to be creative.

Friday, July 11, was the day for the students to shine before their family and friends, presenting themselves as true artist. They felt good and proud. They were very happy. They enjoyed the smiles on the faces of their parents and friends.

Some of the students will continue to grow and develop their artistic talent. Others will continue to explore other intelligences where they can discover what is so special about themselves.

Through art, students express their feelings, emotions, thoughts and goals. the visual Art has been a means of recording and keeping their history alive in their community.

“All the arts contribute to the Art of knowing how to live.”
